Truro

Truro is the shiretown of Colchester County. Known as the "Hub of Nova Scotia", Truro's central location, historic downtown and tidal bore phenomena make it a popular home-base for exploring the province. The Mi'kmaq name for the Truro area, "Wagobagitik" means "end of the water's flow". Mi'kmaq people continue to live in the area at the Millbrook First Nation— We'kokekwik band.

Be there or be square!

Nestled in the quaint streets of Downtown Truro lies Civic Square. Centrally located among the Public Library, the Colchester Historeum and the Truro Farmers' Market, the Civic Square features a large, open space that makes it perfect for public gatherings. Whether you are there for a live music performance, or to relax with a good book after visiting the local library, there is something for everyone. In the winter, the Square even has an outdoor skating rink!

Apex Golf Tournament Weekend

August 5-6 - Truro Golf Club

Founded in 1974, this annual 4-day homecoming event takes place in Truro, and is a shared piece of history and celebration for Truro's Black communities.

Apex is built around a golf tournament that has grown to welcome over 100 golfers annually from all over North America. During the event, hundreds more come to town as spectators, family and friends to partake in weekend activities. www.apexinvitationalgolf.com

Emancipation Day Celebrations

August 7 - Stan "Chook" Maxwell Memorial Park

Emancipation Day remembers our shared history of the enslavement of people of Afrikan ancestry and acknowledges the strength and perseverance of Black people in Canada. Events take place throughout the day, including musical performances, community games and other reflections.

The Marigold houses a 208 soft seat theatre, the MMFI Art Gallery, the Colchester County Sports Hall of Fame, a workshop space for arts education programs for all age groups, a boardroom, concession area, and offices. With the strong support of the community and various organizations, the Marigold provides musical, theatrical, live comedy, and dance performances for the community and surrounding areas.

Stewiacke

The town is located in the Stewiacke Valley at the confluence of the Stewiacke and Shubenacadie Rivers. Stewiacke is noted as being located halfway between the North Pole and the Equator. Stewiacke was named in the language of the local Mi'kmaq First Nations and is a word meaning "flowing out in small streams" and "winding river" or "whimpering or whining as it goes".

In the late 1990s, a tourism attraction named Mastodon Ridge opened near the town's highway exit, based on a local discovery of a mastodon skeleton.

The elephant in the room... oh wait! It's a Mastodon!

Located conveniently just off the highway, under the shadow of Marvin the Mastodon, is Mastodon Ridge. This exciting attraction is halfway between the Equator and the North Pole. Featuring many amenities that are fun for the whole family!

Debert

Debert, rich with history, is situated near coal and iron ore deposits that were mined in the 19th and early 20th centuries. During the Second World War Debert was the location of a Canadian Army base named Debert Military Camp and an adjoining Royal Canadian Air Force station named RCAF Station Debert.

A suite of archaeological sites was first discovered in Debert more than 60 years ago and continues to reveal new evidence of people living in what was an ice-age landscape. They are the oldest directly-dated archaeological sites in Canada, and they are among the largest and best-preserved archaeological sites of this age in North America.

A place of history, above and below the ground

The Debert Military Museum has an extensive assortment of exhibits within the museum including a Russian Photo Exhibit, a Bunker Room Exhibit and more.

The Debert Diefenbunker was built in the 1960's to provide shelter and protection from a nuclear attack. The bunker, now known as Enter the Bunker, has become a hub of entertainment featuring Laser Tag, Escape Rooms, and the History of this massive underground building. -35 Acadia Avenue, Debert

Mi'kmaewey Debert Interpretive Trail is a 4.4 km loop that is one of the most significant indigenous archeological sites in North America that dates back to approximately 11,000 years before present. Debert Mi'kmaewey tells the story of the earliest human settlement in eastern North America. Mi'kmaewey Debert National Historic Site is part of the Cliffs of Fundy Geopark.

MacElmons Pond Provincial Park is a picnic park located in Debert. The park borders a wildlife sanctuary and has a 1-km walking trail beside a pond where migrating waterfowl stop over. -219 MacElmon Road, Debert

Masstown & Great Village

A visit to Masstown Market is like coming home to good friends, family and comforting food. They are a fully accessible, barrier free establishment offering year-round service. 10622, Nova Scotia Trunk 2, Masstown

Great Village is a small rural community located along the north shore of Cobequid Bay and was first settled by French-speaking Acadians around 1630, who built dykes in the marshes, reclaimed land, and created a village called "Petit-Louis" or "Vil de Cadets". The Acadian settlers built dykes to create farmland, which is still farmed today, from the area's extensive salt marsh and the village partially exists on this land.

The Northumberland Shore

An adventure for shore!

Less than an hour's drive from the centre of Truro to the Northumberland Shore, dozens of inviting one-of-a-kind experiences await. There are a number of public beaches (see page 46) to dip your toes in warm, soothing salt water, play a round of golf with a view of the shoreline and experience culinary delights all along with way.

This region is rich in heritage and culture waiting to be discovered. Meet the makers at the weekly Saturday farmers' market, learn about the lives of early settlers and experience the fresh sea breeze while enjoying a delicious meal on one of the many decks and patios in the historic village of Tatamagouche.

The Fraser Gallery is a 'must see' in your visit to Tatamagouche

Our heritage building has four galleries and a shop hosting local art and fine craft for a fabulous selection of original work.

New exhibits every 3 weeks! Over 40 years of supporting the arts on the North Shore.

Tatamagouche

A historic village with a modern flare. The seaside, historic Village of Tatamagouche is a hub of activity during summer months. A rich past and a breathtaking present, the village's heritage retraces the steps of early Mi'kmaq residents, who gave Tatamagouche its name, meaning the "meeting of two waters," where it forms at the junction of the French and Waugh River inside Tatamagouche Bay. It reanimates the relationship between the Fortress of Louisbourg and the village as a key location in the supply chain under Acadian settlement. Later, it was a welcome homestead for Montbeliard and Scottish settlers working the lands and building ships during the Golden Age of Sail.

Today, the vibrant Main Street boasts a number of unique shops featuring locally made one-of-a-kind creations and gifts. Many locations offer decks for enjoying a leisurely meal or snack as you take time to explore.

Choo Choo! The Tatamagouche Road Train is an exciting way to travel around the village of Tatamagouche. Take a trip from Lockerby Bridge to Nelson Park and admire the scenery as you go. Running June 29th – September 4th, 2022. Train runs every hour on the hour starting at 10 am with the last run going at 4 pm.
